With constant pressure to increase the number of frames of full color for our customers, we realized in 2007 that we had to increase our color capacity. At that time we had one 8 unit Harris V-15 press line and one 10 unit Harris V-22 press line. Adding 4 or 8 Harris units to increase the color capacity for either of the two press lines would have made the lines too long to operate effectively.

What we needed was some sort of 4-high color press that would match up with our Harris equipment. However, finding a press that could match up with a true 22 3/4" cutoff proved difficult. During Nexpo in Orlando in 2007, we saw the Web Press Corporation booth and stopped in to talk.. They showed us their Quad Stack and insisted that they could configure it with true 22 3/4" cylinders and match it to our Harris equipment. We were dubious but agreed talk to several of their customers and visit a facility in Ohio that had successfully matched the Quad Stack to Harris V series presses.

We ultimately decided to purchase the press and could not be happier. Our savings on paper, ink, plates and time actually are greater than our monthly machine payment and our quality is significantly better. This was a "no brainer". We have a better product, more press capacity, and it has resulted in an immediate positive cash flow. I would highly recommend this press to anyone with Harris equipment that wishes to save money, increase press capacity, and improve quality.
